In "Life of Love" [volume III, pp. 152-153], Marie-Paule first wrote the following:

This morning, a deep love lends me wings to go to church. I arrive well in advance of the time in order to make a good preparation for my Mass.

I have only arrived when my thoughts start wandering about over all my problems. Then suddenly I realize, in confusion, that I am not being very polite, and I say to the Lord:

"You see, I have not even taken the time to think about..."

"YOU, THAT IS ME," the Lord says to me with authority and so quickly that, in my surprise, I am unable to say the last word (YOU) which He utters in my place.

Then, later, Marie-Paule would also write: [volume XI, p. 201]

At the shrine of Lac-Edchemin, Mary once again regards me with such kindness that I say to her quite spontaneously:

"The two of us are but one, aren't we?"

And her living regard moves me deeply in a fusion of our two hearts.

Mother: Thus said the Lady.

Assembly: May she be blessed forever.
