In "Life of Love" [vol. V, p. 15], Marie-Paule wrote:

The Exaltation of the Holy Cross, September 14, 1969.

My soul is completely imbued with the mystery of the cross.

It is Sunday, and Mass proceeds. The ineffable mystery which recalls the Passion of Christ.

Everything is calm, when suddenly,
I feel an extraordinary impulsion propelling my soul
at a dizzying speed towards the uppermost spheres.
I feel very distinctly, at the height of my shoulders and head, fibers detaching themselves from my being and,
like rays, shooting vertically upwards towards the Infinite.

At the same moment, I "know" that this sudden and prodigious ascent of my soul is due to all the prayers being said and all the Masses being celebrated for my intentions on the occasion of my birthday.

My enraptured soul delights in these moments all too short.
What force, what power in prayer!

Mother: Thus said the Lady.

Assembly: May she be blessed forever.
